| Name | What I did after Leaving Homefield Preparatory School | What I am doing now |
|---|---|---|
| Graham Standwell | Went to Cranleigh then Durham Uni. M.Litt. then PhD. | Now retired |
| George Coppen | Marlborough College, then took on a diverse life which included service with the Seaforth Highlanders, a first degree at Cape Town, working as an archaeologist, a teacher, and a Parliamentary Committee Clerk in what is now Zimbabwe, teaching at Durham School, then training for the ministry at Durham University followed by a curacy at Douglas I of M and then Vicar of Kidlington, Oxford, for 21 years. The latter included prison work (chaplaincy at an HMYOI and working as a sessional psychotherapist at HMP Grendon). | All of this leading to a glorious retirement in eastern Ross-shire where politics has made life as uncertain as life in Southern Africa. |
| Roland John | KCS Wimbledon and then took the hippie trail south. | On returning to the UK I started the Hippopotamus Press, a small independent outlet publishing poetry and some criticism. My own poetry, translations and criticism have been published by a number of different publishers. I have cobbled a living together from publishing, writing, lecturing, etc. The way of a minor writer. |
