| Name | What I did after Leaving Homefield Preparatory School | What I am doing now |
|---|---|---|
| Tariq Ahmad | I went to Emanuel school in Clapham after which I gained a BSc in Maths at QM University (then QMW). Thereafter I qualified as an accountant and then subsequently an MBA at Imperial. During these professional studies I worked mostly as Director of Finance, Planning and Analysis. Played some cricket intermittently and once bowled out Wasim Akram and once hit Shoaib Akhtar for 4 but hit my own wicket at the same time! Some things never change! Have 3 children who have kept me super active! | Now self employed, and kind of semi-retired having grown a property business (was on Homes Under the `Hammer) and an electronics business. have been to Africa numerous times to provide water solutions |
| Simon Collins | After I left Homefield I attended Reigate Grammar School until 1995 when I took an (unplanned!) gap year before going to the University of Portsmouth to read Accounting. Graduating in 1999 I joined the Royal Navy as an Aircrew Officer and spent 19 years flying the Lynx and Wildcat helicopter (I flew a Lynx into Homefield in 2005) retiring as a Commander having commanded two Royal Naval Air Squadrons. | I am currently the Business Director for Chemring Countermeasures UK, part of the Chemring Group, where I head up the Commercial, Sales and Marketing teams. I live in Somerset with my wife and 3 children, am a Liveryman with the Worshipful Company Distillers and a Trustee of my local church. Life is busy but fun! |
